White Power Organizer at Atlanta's John Marshall Law School

Meet Casey Jordan Cooper, a student at Atlanta's John Marshall Law School and a militant racist organizer. As well as studying law, Cooper is an active "Alt-Right" white nationalist who circulates propaganda, helps organize racist gatherings, and harasses people who he considers as enemies.

Cooper has made death threats to a Black community activist in Atlanta, sending his target a picture of a noose and then stating "You hang." Over the last year, Cooper posted extensively about his hatred of "n[]rs," "f[]ts," and "k[]es," and circulated pro-Nazi imagery.

Casey Cooper boasted of posting racist propaganda around Atlanta, such as hitting Georgia State University and Georgia Tech with white power materials (for example a "Why White Women Shouldn't Date Black Men" flyer.)

On September 10, 2016 Cooper visited Stone Mountain Park with his organized crew of white nationalists. The group was recorded taunting another park visitor with sexist and anti-Semitic remarks.

As a local "Alt-Right" leader, Cooper assisted with the Atlanta Forum, a white power conference that took place in Marietta this January.

Visit the website of Atlanta Antifascists for more documentation on Cooper's white power agitation. Spread the word to other students. Keep each other safe.
