

DECOLONIZATION MEANS NO STATE

Canada was created to govern, exploit and expand the territories stolen from Indigenous peoples - nothing has changed.

The raid on Wet'suwet'en land defenders should end any notion that the state and its police forces have any aspiration for peace or consultation.

This is and always has been low intensity warfare.

The state and its police forces exist to serve the rich & powerful through exploitation.

Our interests are fundamentally opposed to theirs! And always will be!

In this context reconciliation is impossible and decolonization means attack!

As Métis revolutionary Southern Wind Women explains in their piece Autonomously and with Conviction

Decolonization means no state

With this understanding we need to reflect on the effectiveness of symbolic actions aimed at making a moral appeal to the state. It has never cared and never will care about Indigenous, working class and poor peoples interests.

We must speak the only language it knows economic disruption & sabotage.

The state will not save us from climate change, violence and exploitation we need to organize and meet our own needs.

Target our common enemies: the Canadian state, its police forces, its rails, ports & economic infrastructure.

Our wicks are lit, and our aim looks towards the enemy. We will not hesitate, - this capitalist and colonial system shall burn.
